

Jan 5, 1589

Catherine de Medici of France died at age 69.

1589

Henry III (1551-89) of France
The dissimulation and cruelty that characterized Henry III showed in his foe. His treacherous murder of his formidable rival, Henry of Guise led to his own assassination the following year.

1589

(1519-1589)

Catherine De' Medici was queen consort and queen mother.

Dominated France for half a century

1589

Book of the JANIZARIES ^{Osman}

1589

1912 Dates J-BK

Vigo Bay in Spain was attacked again by Drake

1589-1848

1912 Dates J-BK

HOUSE OF BOURBON (France)

Began with Henry IV, who, by virtue of the SALIC LAW became heir to the French throne on the assassination of Henry III, and continued in a direct line to the Revolution.

Louis XVIII and his brother Charles X were also in direct line. With the interruption of the Revolution and the empire, the dynasty continued from 1589-1848

The Bourbons were descended from the 6th son of ST. LOUIS, brother of Philippe III

Their reign came to an end with the flight of Louis Philippe and the setting up of the Second Republic (1848)

1589

Galileo became professor of mathematics at University of PISA

c1589

Edict of NEMOURS

Demande by the Catholic league of France and signed by Henry III of France (died 1589).
This edict outlawed Calvinism in France

1589-1792

1912 Dates J-BK

France

House of Bourbon.

1589 - 1610

1912 Dates J-BK

France

Henry IV